walk in party reports that at approximately 9:45 a.m. a male party knocked on his door and claimed to have equipment that needed to be installed on his house. The party claimed to be from Comcast. When questioned further the man left the area in a plain white van with a ladder on the roof.

The reporting party checked with Comcast who reported that their workers would not show up unannounced in this fashion.

The suspicious person was a white male with a possible Russian accent. He was wearing work clothes with a name tag.

There have been several distraction style burglaries in area communities in recent weeks and residents are urged to report suspicious activity to police immediately. Legitimate utility workers will seldom come to your home unannounced and it is recommended that homeowners verify information by phone.
